The table and graph presented above do not reflect the deduction of taxes a shareholder would pay on Fund distributions or the redemption of Fund Shares. Past performance is not indicative of future performance.

How did the Fund perform in the last year?

The Fund underperformed the New Covenant Balanced Growth Benchmark (a 60%/40% blend of the Russell 3000 Index and the Bloomberg Intermediate U.S. Aggregate Bond Index) for the 12-month period ending June 30, 2024.

U.S. stocks rose significantly during the reporting period as a result of strong corporate earnings as investors became less concerned about inflation. Growth stocks outperformed relative to value stocks, and shares of larger-capitalization companies outperformed relative to smaller-capitalization stocks. Lower-beta stocks generally lagged relative to higher-beta stocks.

Positions in the information technology and communication services sectors were the most notable positive contributors to the performance of the Fund's equity portfolio as they included several of the mega-cap growth stocks that led the market over the reporting period. Conversely, the utilities and consumer staples sectors were the primary detractors from Fund performance as those low-beta sectors underperformed the overall market during the period.

The slightly longer duration posture of the Fund's fixed income portfolio detracted from performance as yields rose during the first half of 2024. All spread sectors outperformed the overall U.S. bond market, as represented by the Bloomberg U.S. Aggregate Bond Index, and Fund performance benefited from overweight positions in agency mortgage backed securities (MBS) and the financial sector, with a concentration in money center banks. Selection in agency MBS added to performance as the Fund's managers preferred specified pools over to be announced (TBA) securities (contracts for the purchase or sale of an MBS to be delivered at an agreed-upon future date).
